EXPERIENCE

Chris is a seasoned tax professional with deep expertise in advising high-net-worth families, family offices, private business owners and complex multi-entity structures. With nearly a decade of progressive tax leadership experience, Chris is known for his ability to navigate sophisticated domestic and international tax matters while building strong, trust-centered relationships with clients.

His background spans extensive work with flow-through entities, individuals, trusts, foundations and corporations, giving him a broad perspective and the technical acumen to address clients' most intricate tax needs. His experience also includes significant work in international tax, particularly in the areas of foreign tax credit planning and treaty analysis. Throughout his career, Chris's ability to balance strategic thinking with hands-on technical execution has made him a valued advisor to both clients and colleagues.

Chris began his professional journey in accounting after earning both a Bachelor of Business Administration in Finance and a Bachelor of Business Administration in Economics from the University of Georgia. He later completed a Master of Professional Accountancy from Georgia State University and earned his CPA license.

Grounded, personable and highly service-oriented, Chris is driven by a genuine desire to help clients achieve clarity, efficiency and long-term financial success. Whether guiding multigenerational families through complex planning or leading teams through demanding project cycles, he brings a thoughtful, solutions focused approach to every engagement.
